brought from a clear spring lake, protected from contamination, on a nearby mountain top. There are few, if any, towns of its size in the country that have these advantages, so important to the health and comfort of residents. The main street, in which are most of the hotels and business places, is a wide thoroughfare paved with brick. It is flushed daily, and in summer is constantly swept and sprinkled so that it is free from dust and other objectionable features. There is ample police protection and an efficient fire department, and the health and personal comfort of residents and visitors are carefully guarded.

The town has two National banks, a public library, a music hall, a moving-picture theatre, numerous shops and markets, several large, up-to-date department stores, four first-class drug stores, four barber shops and newspaper establishments. All of the New York morning and evening newspapers are obtainable in the village within a few hours after their publication.

The hotel accommodations of Liberty are unsurpassed. Every modern comfort and convenience are to be had, and nothing is left undone that will contribute to the needs of patrons.

Educational facilities of the very best are available in Liberty, the local schools having a standing equal to that of the best institutions of their kind in the state. The new High School building, erected in 1912, is a fine, modern and completely equipped educational institution. There is also a well-patronized private school, for boys and girls, under the direction of the Sisters of the Dominican Order.

Liberty enjoys a first-class postal-service. There is a large post-office, with four mail arrivals and departures daily and a free delivery system.

The Western Union telegraph service and the local and long-distance telephone system put residents of Liberty in immediate communication with all sections of the country.

Churches and Fraternal Societies

The religious activities of the town are represented by seven denominations.

Of fraternal societies, there are Masons, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Maccabees, Order of Eastern Star, Rebeccas and Junior Order of American Mechanics.

How to Reach Liberty

Liberty may be reached from any section of the country by either railroad or automobile.

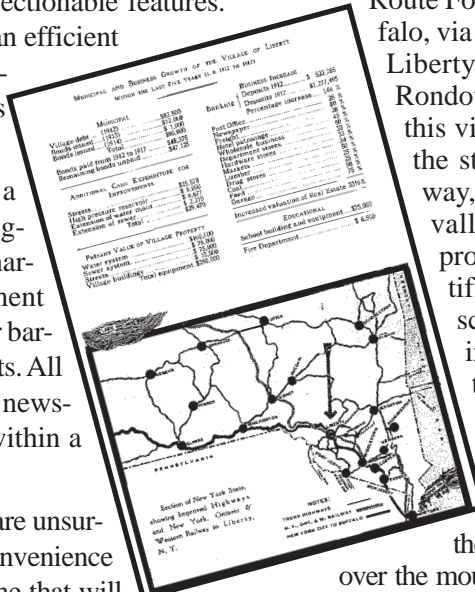

The New York, Ontario and Western Railway furnishes speedy and comfortable transportation to and from New York, as well as other points in the state and places in the middle and far west. There are many trains daily, with parlor cars attached. The New York termini are at West Forty-second and Cortlandt streets, which points are readily accessible to visitors from New England and the South.

For those desiring to reach Liberty by automobile, no more enjoyable trip can be imagined, since State Trunk Line Route Four, the direct road from New York to Buffalo, via Binghamton, passes through the town. At Liberty the state road from Kingston and the Rondout valley joins Route Four, and through this village the tourist from the western part of the state finds the most direct and accessible way, either up or down the Hudson or Rondout valleys. The autoist from the west, in approaching Liberty, travels through the beautiful Delaware and Beaverkill valleys, described as one of the most delightful drives in the country; while from the east the road traverses the picturesque Hudson valley, unsurpassed for the variety and magnificence of its scenery, and following Route Four passes through Tuxedo, Goshen and Middletown to Liberty. At Liberty is found the highest point on this road; and when passing over the mountains in the vicinity the eye of the traveler meets, on one side, the imposing outlines of the Shawangunk hills, the Highlands and the Catskills, and on the other, clearly profiled against the horizon, it encounters the rugged hills and mountains of New Jersey and Pennsylvania, fifty miles distant.

Those desiring to come to Liberty, for either health or recreation, and who wish to obtain more specific information than is given in this booklet are cordially invited to address the Secretary of the Liberty business Men's Association.
